The Canadian Women’s Foundation is dedicated to long-term systemic change that will bring about the equality of women and girls in Canada.

They grant funds for innovative and diverse programs and projects designed to help women and girls achieve greater self-reliance and economic independence.

They fund only programs and projects that take place in Canada. Most grants are for a one-year period. The maximum grant size is between $15,000 and $25,000, depending on which Fund the grants are made from. Larger, multi-year grants are sometimes made through special collaborative funds.

Because CWF is a registered charitable foundation, by law, they are only permitted to give grants to organizations which are charities registered with Canada Customs and Revenue.

The Bureau of Women's Health and Gender Analysis of Health Canada has initiatives such as the Women's Health Indicators Project.

Also, there is the Women’s Health Contribution Program which contributes approximately $2.95 million annually to eligible recipients. It currently supports:

- Centres of Excellence for Women's Health
- the Canadian Women's Health Network
- Working groups and other initiatives that address specific policy issues in women's health
STATUS OF WOMEN CANADA

Newfoundland & Labrador Centre for Applied Health Research

➢ Provides financial and technical assistance to support action by women's organizations and other partners seeking to advance equality for women by addressing women's economic, social, political and legal situation.

➢ Policy Research Fund for:
  • research that identifies policy gaps, trends and emerging issues;
  • research that examines the consequences of existing policies; and,
  • research that focuses on concrete recommendations for policies and practices that would improve the status of women.
